CODE OF ETHICS

As sociologists, members of the Midwest Sociological Society subscribe to the Code of Ethics of the American Sociological Association.

To read the Code in its entirety, please visit the ASA online at www.ASanet.org and follow the link to "Ethics."

MSS members are reminded that sexual or racial harassment is unethical in any professional setting, and that the annual meeting of the Midwest Sociological Society constitutes such a professional setting. Instances of harassment should be reported as soon as possible to the Professional Issues and Standards Committee.

WELCOME

Thank you for joining us in Chicago for the 2022 Midwest Sociological Society Annual Meeting. This is the first time we've met in-person since the start of the pandemic, and it seems like a decade ago. That distorted sense of time and the knowledge that we are living through a profound historical moment informed the theme of our conference "Before and After: Remembering the Past and Envisioning the Future." Our conference includes an array of programming that explores our pandemic-saturated times. We hope to offer several "normal" MSS experiences—like the Awards Ceremony, Trivia Night, tours, and the Opening Reception—while recognizing that we are living under the shadow of the COVID-19 pandemic. Under that shadow, the MSS faces a new set of constraints and opportunities. Ours is a "we" organization, one that is dependent on the good will and hard work of our membership. Please consider attending the "Is MSS Leadership for Me? Expanding Opportunities for Engagement" to learn how you can contribute.

We have two amazing plenary speakers whose talks you do not want to miss:

Dr. Jessica Calarco (University of Indiana) "By Default How Couples Account for Gender Inequalities in Pandemic Parenting."

Dr. Rashawn Ray (University of Virginia) "Bad Apples come from Rotten Trees: Pursuing Racial Equity in Policing."

Both are rising stars in the field speaking about some of the most vexing problems facing the United States. We are also happy to partner with the Society for the Study of Symbolic Interactionism. Their plenary speaker, Dr. Harvey Molotch, will give a talk titled, "How Do We Know About Public Facts? Durkheim, Trump and Epidemics of Ignorance."

I want to thank the 2022 Program Committee and the Student Directors for their hard work. I am grateful for the intelligence and dedication of our Executive Director, Jennifer Talarico, in making this conference happen. Our Meeting Systems Coordinator, Dr. Sadie Pendaz-Foster, also deserves massive credit for the often-unseen labor of assembling the program, troubleshooting the problems, and corresponding with the presiders and presenters. We are privileged to be in a beautiful hotel in one of the greatest cities in the world. On Friday, grab coffee or a cocktail and treat yourself to an unsurpassed view of the city from the Élevé Room. I hope to see you there!

Session 53 | Thursday

Virtual Tour: Identity, Art, and Public Protest for Social Change

Jane Addams Hull-House Museum

$15 per person

St. Gallen 2

10:30 AM – Noon

Virtual tours of Hull-House use our beautiful 360-degree virtual walkthrough of the mansion through a Zoom presentation. Guests will learn about the history of the Hull-House Settlement and the life of social activist and reformer Jane Addams. This tour also explores Jane Addams' lifelong queer relationship with Mary Rozet Smith, and how reformers at Hull-House challenged gender norms and expanded the role of women in civic life. We will discuss the many programs and initiatives launched by Hull-House, through artifacts like ceramic pieces from the Hull-House Kilns program, which tell the stories of the Mexican migrant and immigrant experience in Chicago. Finally, guests will visit the exhibit True Peace: The Presence of Justice, spotlighting the beginnings of the women's peace movement and organizing legacy of women, women of color, and queer communities of color, featuring artist-activists Monica Trinidad and Sarah-Ji.

Session 95 | Friday

Onsite Tour: Gender and Sexuality Tour

Jane Addams Hull-House Museum

$25 per person

10:30 AM – Noon

Minimum: 10 guests

Meet in the hotel lobby at 9:45 AM to access the tour bus. We should return to the hotel around noon.

Bring Chicago history out of the closet! Join us for a tour of Hull-House and explore early 20th century stories of gender non-conformity, diverse definitions of family, and fierce self-expression. Hull-House was world-renowned for supporting immigrants and world peace, but did you know it helped pave the way for LGBTQ+ rights? We will address the question, "Was Jane Addams a lesbian?" and consider the historic context that complicates both the answer and the question itself. On this participatory tour we will explore historic artifacts and contemporary conversations. We will consider how history connects with today's struggles for social justice and how we might expand our own notions of gender and sexuality.

2022 MSS CERTIFICATES

The MSS Gender and Sexuality Studies Certificate is a certification program organized by the MSS Women in the Profession committee. The program provides a structure for you to focus your conference participation on issues related to, or that impact, gender and sexuality. By completing the certification process you will be able to document and will be recognized for the following outcomes:

- (1) Participants will be able to analyze in their reflective statement how concepts of gender and sexuality are created, maintained, and/or challenged through embodiment, cultural representations, and/or social organization
- (2) Participants will be able to analyze in their reflective statement how identities associated with gender and sexuality intersect with other identities (e.g., race, class, ability) to situate individuals within interlocking systems of power (e.g., sexism, classism, heterosexism, racism) and how these intersections shape identities, social interaction, cultural artifacts, and social structures.
- (3) Participants will be able to connect and apply the concepts of gender and sexuality to their own life and academic work.

For you to receive the MSS Gender and Sexuality Studies certificate you need to attend five of the identified sessions and write a brief reflection on your learning that addresses the three learning outcomes for the certificate. There are multiple qualifying sessions in many time slots that demonstrate the importance of this theme throughout the conference.

The MSS-AKD Teaching Certificate is a certification program organized by the MSS Teaching and Learning Committee in conjunction with AKD. The program provides a structure for you to focus your conference participation around university issues related to, or that impact, undergraduate teaching and learning in sociology (i.e. teaching and learning, race and ethnicity, gender studies). By completing the certification process you will be able to document, and will be recognized for, your participation in sessions focused on teaching and learning (e.g. pedagogy, curriculum development, classroom management, course development, and technology).

In order for you to receive the MSS-AKD Teaching Certificate you need to attend the AKD workshop on teaching and learning along with 4 other sessions (verified by a signature from the session organizer at the end of each session you attend) and write a brief reflection on your learning. There are multiple qualifying sessions in many time slots that demonstrate the importance of this theme throughout the conference.

For more information about the certificate process or to pick up a complete roster of eligible sessions for these certificate, please stop by the Registration desk or find more information on the MSS meeting app in the “Resources” section.

AKD GRADUATE STUDENT TEACHING WORKSHOP

Alpha Kappa Delta Session

Facilitators: Daphne Pedersen, University of North Dakota
Frankie (S.) Frank, University of Wisconsin - Madison
Gabe Kilzer, University of North Dakota

This pre-conference is sponsored by Alpha Kappa Delta (AKD), the International Sociology Honors Society. This year, AKD is proud to again offer a workshop for graduate students.

By attending this workshop and four additional MSS sessions focusing on teaching and learning, graduate students can earn an MSS-AKD Teaching Development Certificate. The workshop may also be used toward the AKD Certificate in Teaching and Learning. More details about how to earn these two certificates will be provided during the workshop.

There is no additional cost to attend the AKD Graduate Student Teaching Development Workshop, or to participate in the MSS-AKD Certification program.

Facilitators: Mia Hardy, Elgin Community College
Elizabeth Hope, Elgin Community College

The TIDE (Teaching/Learning, Inclusiveness, Diversity, and Equity) group was formed at Elgin Community College before the pandemic to provide a space for faculty to hone and develop inclusive practices. Consisting of faculty from various disciplines and a handful of administrators, the group embarked upon professional development and support for faculty, by faculty. As a newly minted group, TIDE quickly had to pivot to ensure the momentum built around inclusiveness, diversity, and equity in teaching and learning remained at the forefront despite the COVID-19 pandemic challenges. The TIDE group doubled down on efforts related to the mission of the group through increased group cohesiveness and consistent development offerings. For instance, FRIDAYafternoon chats for faculty to discuss barriers to student success, challenges, and solutions in the classroom, and simply checking in with one another’s well-being. From these efforts, the topics for faculty-led professional development for serving students and coping during a pandemic were spawned and will be presented during this workshop to help others form a similar group.

2:45 PM-4:15 PM*ST. GALLEN 3*FOSTERING COMMUNITY AND EXPLORING JUSTICE USING CIRCLES IN THE COLLEGE CLASSROOM

Facilitators: Carlene Sipma-Dysico, Lewis University
 Natalie Lif, Lewis University

Talking circles are increasingly being used for restorative justice practices in juvenile detention facilities, mentoring organizations, reentry programs for formerly incarcerated persons, elementary and secondary schools, and many other locations. Adapted from Indigenous talking circles, this process can bring people together on an equal footing to resolve conflict, develop trust, and build relationships. In the college classroom, community building provides a more equitable environment that supports learning, increases a sense of belonging for students, and increases student engagement in the course. This workshop will include participation in an abbreviated Circle, information on how Circles can be incorporated into a variety of sociology courses, and an examination of student feedback on the outcomes of Circle participation.

2:45 PM-4:15 PM*VEVEY 2*TRANSITIONS OF SELF: MOVING FROM GRADUATE STUDENT TO FACULTY MEMBER OR PRACTITIONER

Facilitator: Denise Bullock, Indiana University East

As humans, we experience multiple transitions throughout our lives. Transitioning from a graduate student to a faculty member is one of those key transitional moments in which our sense of self shifts with the change in role. In this workshop, participants will work through a series of exercises, to discover, analyze, and plan for that anticipated transition of self. The exercises are theoretically grounded in the Transformative Identity Framework (TIF) framework, which integrates the identity models of Hewitt, Simon and Gagnon, and Bullock and is combined with Strauss' concept of trajectory. The goal of the workshop is to provide a set of tools that participants can use to successfully navigate the transition of roles and self. This workshop is appropriate for graduate students seeking employment as a faculty member or a practitioner in a variety of settings.

SESSION 147
SATURDAY*[WORKSHOP]
8:30 AM-10:00 AM*VEVEY 3*INTRODUCING GLOBAL ECOLOGICAL MAPPING: DEI AND GEM

Facilitators: Charlotte Kunkel, Luther College
 Ronald Ferguson, Ridgewater College

Much work is currently focused on equity and inclusion as institutional goals, but how exactly do we achieve it? Can we achieve systemic equity through tools focused on individuals or individual analysis? We present the theoretical background to develop a map of your organization and as well as introduce the practical tool of mapping organizations and institutions for equity through the framework of global ecological mapping. Rooted in systems thinking, power mapping, and global citizenship, we share a pathway to design regenerative structures of equity.

First Generation Task Force Session

Facilitators: Aaron Hoy, Minnesota State University, Mankato
Ruby Rivera, Northern Illinois University

This is a workshop that will encourage sharing about what specific challenges faced by first generation students, faculty, or staff during the COVID-19 pandemic. The reduction of face-to-face support resulting from the shift to online classes, less structure and access to resources, and possibly even greater demands from family and work, all impact first generations students, faculty, and staff in a particular way. We also hope to share any unexpected consequences or effects. Please bring your stories and thoughts about coping with the pandemic in academia as a first generation student, faculty, or staff

2021-22 ASA MINORITY FELLOW*Sponsored by Midwest Sociological SocietyPHILIP J. PETTIS

GRADUATE INSTITUTION: VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

Philip J. Pettis is a PhD candidate at Vanderbilt University in Nashville. He earned his BA and MSW from Wichita State University, Kansas. His research interests are centered within the sociological subdisciplines of medical sociology, social networks, sexuality and gender, race/ethnicity, and social psychology. Specifically, Pettis investigates the consequences of heterosexism (structural, interpersonal, and individual) within two primary domains: health disparities and the social construction of sexual identity. Within these two research areas, he examines how heterosexism, social networks, and social psychological factors interplay to influence health disparities and sexual identity at the intersection of sexual orientation, race, gender, and socioeconomic status. Pettis' dissertation, prior work, and continued research speak to his ongoing commitment to addressing research gaps within these domains. In his mixed-methods dissertation, Pettis integrates six theories (structural stigma, associative stigma, minority stress, intersectionality, social capital, and social cost) to build and examine a fuller theoretical framework on how heterosexist contexts produce health inequalities and shape sexual identity. His work has been supported and recognized by the American Sociological Association Minority Fellowship Program, the Sociologists' AIDS Network, and the National Institute of Health-funded Social Networks & Health Program via the Duke University Network Analysis Center. Pettis is also a committed educator and mentor, whose teaching was recognized by the College of Arts and Sciences at Vanderbilt University when he received the Outstanding Graduate Student Teaching Assistant Award. Prior to his training as a sociologist, he worked six years in applied social work and his research focused on HIV/AIDS and community-based interventions. In the future, Pettis hopes to continue his teaching and research and train future sociologists whose work critically integrates sexuality, gender, health, social networks, and race/ethnicity.

THANK YOU TO OUR EXHIBITORS AND ADVERTISERS!

Study with award-winning faculty at Illinois State University!

Our Master's program emphasizes research and content training. You will study social theory, research design and qualitative and quantitative methods to inform your thesis research. We complement these courses with topical seminars in the various areas of sociology and independent studies with our world-class faculty. Your master's thesis will be supervised by at least three faculty members, who will work closely with you to ensure a summative project that showcases the rigorous research methods, clear and effective writing, and critical analytic skills that our program teaches. We keep our cohorts small to ensure a great deal of one-on-one interaction between students and faculty.

Faculty Clusters of Expertise

- Family studies, personal relationships and the life-course
- Development, community and environment
- Political economy, work and migration
- Gender, queer studies and sociology of the body

ILLINOIS STATE UNIVERSITY
Illinois' first public university

We offer competitive graduate assistantships, which involve 20 hours of work per week working with a professor as a Teaching Assistant in our undergraduate courses. Each graduate assistant receives a 100% waiver of tuition costs and a monthly stipend of $1300/month. Students that do not receive full funding through our assistantship program may receive a waiver for their tuition costs. The full financial package that a Sociology Graduate Assistant receives is valued at between $50 and $60 thousand dollars.

Courseware Designed with Content Mastery in Mind

Hawkes Learning's Introduction to Sociology courseware uses real-world examples, intelligent tutoring feedback, and more to help students grasp the complex relationship between individuals & society.

Our mastery-based learning path prepares students for future sociology courses with features including:

LEARN: E-book content is presented alongside instructional videos, reflection questions, group activities, and more.

PRACTICE: A penalty-free space for students to apply concepts and correct misunderstandings with intelligent feedback & interactive tutorials.

CERTIFY: Students demonstrate concept mastery at a defined proficiency level without access to tutoring aids.

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

A Department of the COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

What sets our program apart?

Through the exploration of social and individual dynamics, we prepare our students to enrich social scientific understandings of the complex problems societies face today. Sociology at the University of Minnesota offers a PhD program covering the fundamentals of sociological theory and methods, emphasizing the mastery of central literatures and debates, conduct of research, and teaching and policy application. Students receive funding packages that support them for 5 years and benefit from advanced training through seminars, research and teaching assistantships, and instructorships.

What really sets our sociology community apart is the broad range of issues our faculty and graduate students study. Much of this research, transdisciplinary and transnational in scope, expresses a strong sense of civic engagement and a dedication to addressing the pressing problems of our times.

Our research specialties include:

Demography, Family & Life Course
Inequalities & Culture

Global, Transnational & Comparative Sociology
Law, Crime, Punishment & Human Rights

What are our graduate students doing?

Our PhDs find jobs in education at a wide range of institutions, from research universities in the U.S. and worldwide to small liberal arts colleges. Other alumni hold research positions in government and non-profits. During their time at Minnesota, graduate students transition from consumers of knowledge to producers of knowledge, capable of shaping the world in whatever path they pursue.
