Job Description: The Department of Sociology at Western Michigan University seeks candidates for a tenure-track assistant or associate professor in Sociology beginning in the Fall Semester of 2019, pending budgetary approval. This is one of seven new positions in the WMU College of Arts and Sciences that are part of a faculty cluster established to build on our existing excellence in public health research and community engagement to create innovative public health solutions (<https://www.wmich.edu/arts-sciences/public-health-cluster>)

The position requires a PhD degree in Sociology or a related field or evidence of imminent award. We are seeking candidates with an active research and publication agenda in medical sociology with an emphasis in health inequalities and in race and ethnicity. The successful candidate will be able to teach introductory and specialized courses in these areas and to teach in other areas of the undergraduate and graduate programs. The successful candidate will demonstrate commitment to support the success of students from underrepresented groups. The Department of Sociology offers the MA and PhD in Sociology and has undergraduate majors in Sociology, Criminal Justice Studies and Social Psychology.

Western Michigan University WMU is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. Minorities, women, veterans, individuals with disabilities and all other qualified individuals are encouraged to apply. As articulated in the College of Arts and Sciences strategic plan, we are committed to fostering a community of diverse, inclusive, equitable and globally-engaged scholars, learners and leaders. Please visit wmich.edu/hr/jobs for detailed information and application procedures. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. For more information see <http://www.wmich.edu/sociology>.
